

Lecturer – Assistant Professor in Quality – Hygiene - Safety

Created in 1963, the ISA Group – Institute of Life Sciences – currently offers a variety of courses and programs (earth and life sciences engineering, bachelor's degrees, master's degrees and apprenticeships) as well as research and consulting activities for companies, in the field of life sciences, including agriculture, agribusiness, the environment and landscape management.

The ISA Group is a member of Lille Catholic University, which welcomes 25,000 students (2,500 international students) and 5,000 staff members. The University offers 140 distinct degrees in 4 major fields: Law, Economics and Management / Sciences and Engineering / Humanities/ Health Sciences and Social Work.

Job description:

The ISA Group has a full-time tenure-track position available in the department of food science. The position will focus on quality, safety, hygiene. The successful applicant will be required:

- To teach face to face lectures in French and in English, from a list of subjects ranging from food safety, hygiene, HACCP, ISO22000, ...;
- To supervise students' internship and projects (undergraduate and graduate students);
- To take in charge individual tutoring;
- To manage and organize his/her teaching or training units.

Qualifications:

Applicants are expected to have a Master's degree

Significant industry experience (3 years minimum) is required, if possible in the sector of food quality and safety

Fluent level of English compulsory, international experience is a plus

Strong interest in Education

Excellent communications skills, Excellent team-oriented attitude.

For additional information about the position please contact ISA international Office at international@isa-lille.fr

Full-time job contract

Appointment Date: immediately

Salary will be commensurate with education and professional experience.